In partnership with the Phoenix Theatre, the Inter-Cultural Association of Greater Victoria (ICA) is thrilled to announce the upcoming im:print 2024 production. This multidisciplinary performance will spotlight the personal stories of Indigenous, immigrant, newcomer, and settler artists exploring powerful themes of identity, equity, belonging, and place.

Building on the success of im:print in 2019 and 2022, ICA once again collaborates with a diverse creative team to craft a performance that resonates deeply with audiences. The show will feature a dynamic blend of dance, music, spoken word, storytelling, and more, performed by a creative ensemble of artists from different backgrounds. im:print 2024 aims to challenge perspectives, ignite change, and reconnect communities in an ever-evolving world. It provides a vital platform for artists to share their lived experiences, sparking meaningful dialogue on creating a more inclusive and welcoming society.

Facilitated by an accomplished team including Monique Salez, Krystal Cook, Francis Matheu, Yasmine Kandil and Paulina Grainger, im:print 2024 promises to stir hearts and open minds. As artist César A. Cruz once said, "Art should comfort the disturbed and disturb the comfortable."

im:print 2024 will do just that—comfort, challenge, and inspire audiences to reflect on their role in shaping a better future.
