Alana Hayes, mezzo-soprano, is the recipient of the CFUW Victoria Helen Joy Russell Bursary in Music or Jazz Studies for 2013. Although enrolled at Camosun College, her studies in classical voice are given at the Victoria Conservatory of Music, where she studies with Nancy Argenta. Alana comes from Toronto, and has studied there with Anna and Gary Relyea while completing an undergraduate degree in history at Glendon College of York University, in Toronto. She also plays the violin and viola.

Faith Blackburn, piano, is the recipient of the Victoria Judith Harreman Scholarship in Music for 2013. American born of Hispanic descent, Faye moved to Canada with her mother at the age of 17 after her father's death. She has played the piano since the age of eight, and has always wanted to study music at UVic, where she is now in her third year of piano studies with Professor Arthur Rowe. She has also studied harp and voice.

Faye will be joined in the Mendelssohn by Paul Joo and Natalie Dzbik.

Alana will be joined by Robert Holliston at the piano.

Robert is the Head of Keyboard, Collaborative Piano, Music History and Vocal Coaching at the Victoria Conservatory of Music. Most of us here tonight will be familiar with Robert through opera talks or other community activities. He was also our guest at the CFUW Victoria Christmas lunch this past year.

This evening's concert has been arranged by Faith Blackburn and Alana Hayes. The Scholarship & Bursary Society thanks both performers for giving so generously of their time and talents in support of CFUW Victoria awards.
