Guest Presentation: TEACHING THE CELLO IN THE 21st CENTURY
Cellist Paul Katz on Teaching the Cello in the 21st Century: Looking at what hasn't changed and what is new Paul Katz, cellist with the Cleveland String Quartet for well over a quarter of a century, has taught at the Eastman School, Rice University, and now New England Conservatory. He has developed in the past few years one of the most comprehensive on-line resources for the cello (<http://cellobello.com/>) which includes archival footage of artists, blogs of many contemporary cellists, and hours of very informative lessons. Each week he hosts a popular Cello Chat through this website. Come share in this marvelous opportunity to discuss with Paul and other teachers in the community the various aspects of teaching (specifically cello, but which can be applied to many instruments) and ways in which we can utilize today's technology to better enhance the support of musical artistry and pedagogy.
